

February 1, 1988

Dear Oma,

I am sending you a copy of that short story I wrote. I hope you like it. I am taking a creative writing course one night a week for the next 9 weeks. I won't be able to make it to all of the classes, but I will try my best. There is a real mix of people there - a lot of middle-aged housewives, a few guys in their 30's, and a couple of women around my age. It is a very full class. A lot of the people are, I feel, very talented. It is nice to have a chance to interact with them. Our teacher is a woman who began writing a few years ago, and who has had several short stories published. I think I will get a lot out of that class.